Dynamite Being Used in Breaking up Log Jams to Let Freshet Waters

(Special from United Press.)
Portland, Me., Sept. 30.—With one eath already reported and thousands death already reported and thousands of dollars of damage done to towns of North Maine, hundreds of river men are to-day busy with dynamite breaking up log jams so that the freshet waters may run off clear. Booms on then Penobscot have already broken at Argyle and between Oldtown and Bangor are 45,000,000 feet of logs. If jams should bring the force of water heavily on the booms great damage is feared. All through Penobscot, Piscataquot, Somerset and Washington Counties, small towns are flooded and many of the rivers are still rising. Only one death so far has been reported. It was that of Charles F. Keefe of Bangor, an engineer who was killed under his locomotive at West Sebois and died in a hospital in Boulton.

EVELYN THAW'S BROTHER HELD

FAILED IN WORKING BRIDGEPORT

New Haven, Sept. 30.-Howard Nesbit, the brother of Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, of New York city, arrested in this city yesterday afternoon by Detective Sergeant Denehy, is being held on a charge of idleness. Back of this charge there lies a story, however, which is likely to result in another charge being made against the young man. Nesbit was arrested by Ser-geant Dennehy in front of a George street pawn shop where the owner said the young man had been trying to pawn a ring as a diamond ring but which he declared was nothing but a poor imitation. He was brought in on an idleness charge and gave the name of Roy E. Campbell.

On looking over his effects Sergeant Dennehy found cards bearing several names but his letters, telegrams and a bank-book for the American Sav-ings bank in New York city bore the name of Howard Nesbit and when la-ter it was put up to him that this was his name he confessed that it was Neshit had taken a room at the Garde hotel and when Sergeant Dennehy visited it last night he found six other imitation diamond rings there also. All appear to be very poor imitations, the setting being especially cheap and unreal looking. It is stat-ed that when he attempted to pawn the ring he asked $35 for it. course he failed to get it.

city the day before he had made four attempts to pawn the rings, but had failed to get anything each time. The police say he admits knowing the rings were not genuine.

Last night, with the permission of the police, Nesbit sent a registered letter to Daniel O'Reilly, the New York attorney who acted as counsel for Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, and who is her personal counsel. It is presumed the letter asks his advice and perhaps his help as councel.

The bank book Nesbit had with him contained an entry of $1 only. Young Neshit is about 26 lears of age, a good-looking young man, and has a good appearance. When arrested he stated he was acting as an outside advertiser for a firm, and protected against being interfered with, even threating suit

Dazle, alone of all the American born dancers, has achieved really worthy or ambitious efforts. It was the late Louis Morton, the "grand old man" as he was known in England who gave Dazie her first chance with an individual offering at the Palace Theatre, in London. He gave her a trial week and she stayed at the Palace for eight consecutive months. Since that time, until three years ago when the engagement with Hammerstein's Grand Opera Company as premiere dansouse retained her in America. Dazie has played annually at the Palace, where she is a prime favorite with its patrons. It is not uncommon for London papers to refer to her as "Geneo's only rival" or as "the American Saglioni." SPECIAL TRAIN LEBENTHAL SAYS HE ADVISED GORDON TO GIVE UP JEWELS

(Continued From First Page.) Abraham Lebenthal, charged with the theft of the jewels of Mrs. Charles M. Cole took the witness stand in the Superior Court yesterday afternon in his own behalf, absolutely denying the stories of Morris Gordon, and Mr and Mrs. Holzmann, all of whom have stated that the Lebenthals had received the stolen jewelry from young Gor-don. The hearing of the defense took up all the time of the court yesterday and was resumed at this forenoon's session.

Lebenthal testified that he has be located in business in this city for the past 24 years, the last three years in the general merchandise business at Newfield and Stratford avenues and 17 years before that on Water Street in gent's furnishing business. He stated that he owned the building where he was now established and that he and his wife owned considerable realty beides. Lebenthal's story follows: "In July Gordon came to my stor a new suit of clothes. I asked him where he got the money to get the clothes. I asked him if he was knocking down again. No he said I have struck luck, I found some jewelry. I told him the best thing for him to do was to return the jewels. Try and be honest, I told him. Later he came to my store and said he had been in New York and sold some of the jewelry. We argued about the return and New York and sold some of the lewelry. We argued about the return and he said he would put a bullet through my heart, if I told on him. After this I did not speak to him or anyone else about the jewelry. I never saw any of the jewelry, or know nothing about the jewelry only what Gordon has told me, or never had any of the proceeds of the sale of the jewelry."

On cross examination the witness stated that he had told Gordon that if he would be honest, he would set him up in business but would not do so if he were dishonest. He explained his laxity in looking after the young man, after he had come into his store with a new suit on, because he had lost all interest in him. Witness denied that he had taken bills out of the woolen bag and changed them for ones out of his till as he feared the ones in the bag might be marked.

Witness also denied that he prom-

Witness also denied that he promised to have lawyers defend the young man in case he was arrested. The witness also denied all the other statebell game between Yale and Wesleyan because of an automobile accident. Under cross examination the witness is stated that he never saw any advertisement in the newspapers relative to the reward for the return of the jewels. He stated that he took a morning paper, but did not read it as he could not understand English print, only that he could read the baseball scores. He stated that his wife did all the correspondence for his business, and that a short time ago he had a little girl, a Miss Horowitz of Newfield avenue, employed in his store who also did his correspondence. The witness named a number of New York firms with whom he did business. He stated that the entire matter of the return of the jewels to their owner did not interest him, as it was up to young a Gordon. He knew they were not returned. The witness denied that he had ever heard Blitt's story about Holzmann trying to sell jewelry until he heard it in court from Blitt himself. He admitted that he did see Blitt last Sunday, but could not remember what time.

Mrs. Eva Remiz of 9 Wall street, mother-in-law of Lebenthal, testified that Holzmann was at her home on July 4th and she saw him call Blitt out of the room. Under cross examination witness stated that there had always been bad blood between Lebenthal and Holzmann. He said he would go to his Uncle Holzmann's house where the diamonds were. He said they were worth $2,000. Then Gordon told me that I was an honest man, and would like to go in business with me, but I told him I did not want to change my present business. He further said that his Uncle Holzman would not have to work hard any more."

Under cross examination the witness stated that he was a cousin of Mr. Blitt and worked for him. He stated that he came to this city just after Lebenthal's arrest, and told him his story. He stated that he had spoken to Mr. Blitt in New York about the jewels, though when Blitt was on the stand in the morning he stated that he had not talked with anybody. Koping the stated that he had not talked with anybody. The witness became somewhat confused about his meeting with Gordon. On one occasion he stated that he had left him at the cobbler's and on another that he went with him to Uncle Holzmann's house. Mrs. Ann Kaufman said she went to Mrs. Ann Kaufman said she went to the Holzmann house last week and told Mrs. Holzmann that it would seem quite anfair for a sister to go into court and testify against her brother, Mrs. Holzmann and Lebenthal being brother and sister. Mrs. Holzmann said she must go to the trial as it was her husband's wish and he was nearer to her than her brother. The witness when questioned said she did not know it was against the law, to try and persuade a witness not to testify.
